I moved out to Vancouver in 1986. I remember attending High Holiday services at the “Hippy Shule” called Or Shalom in the old Talmud Torah school. It was a fresh change from the traditional services I grew up with in Toronto. The mountains and recreation opportunities were the reason I came.

I am an average "family guy" who loves the outdoors in all seasons. I prefer traveling to locations that do not have a Lonely Planet Guidebook. In another life, I would like to come back as a "professional adventurer " instead of a dentist, although the pay may not be as good.

Some say I have been known to push my three kids a bit. They may not realize it at the time, but everyone appreciates it when they look back on their accomplishments. I also have a very special wife who happily agrees to most of my crazy plans. I am happy to talk about my adventures (especially if there is a bicycle involved) with anyone so stop me and let's have a chat.
